Happy Monday

Mentorship Groups in the Wild!!

A couple weeks ago this lovely mentorship group met up for a walk through the Duke Gardens. We love seeing our mentees and mentors meeting up in creative ways as (weather and geographic locations permit). If you and your mentee or mentorship groups have a fun meet up, please send photos our way!

This upcoming Thursday, February 17, our mentees will be participating in a virtual sustainability careers panel and hear from 3 sustainability professionals focused in corporate sustainability, forestry, and energy. During your mentorship meetings this month, you and your mentee(s) may find it helpful to talk through career aspirations and keeping oneself open to opportunities throughout undergrad.

Checking In

How are your mentee and mentorship group meetings going? We would love to hear how the mentorship experience is progressing for all of you, and see if we can be of any further support. You can share your thoughts and experiences by emailing meilin.chan@duke.edu, or filling out this anonymous survey.

Gathering Summer Opportunities

In the mentee newsletter, we are compiling a list of summer opportunities in the environmental/sustainability field for undergraduate students. If you find one you think the mentees would be interested in or your organization has a summer opportunity open, feel free to send them to meilin.chan@duke.edu and they will be included in the mentee newsletter!

Have a wonderful rest of your week!
